DNLY ONE BALLOT TAKEN IN THE JOINT ASSEMBLY TO-DAY.

The Republicans and F. M. B. A. Men Refrain From Voting, the Democrata Casting Their 101 for Palmer-Moore Declares That His Constituents In struct Him to Vote for Palmer-Re

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 10.—The last dele gation of members reporting for the renewal of joint balloting to-day arrived at 10:30 this orning, and it was stated that every man of cratic 101 or the Republ would be in his seat when the roll-call of the House and Senate was read in the joint as-sembly. The three Independent members, Taubeneck, Moore and Cockrell, came in last cer County yesterday afternoon, and Gen. Palmer visited his headquarters in Parlor No. s of the Leland during the evening. "Long" nes got in on the 10:30 train from Chicago last night, and was at once taken in tow by a rect to Streeter's room, where they remaine until after 11 o'clock. Chairman "Charile Fuller of the Republican Steering Commit tee showed up this morning with the mafority of returning members.

orning early it was given out on good the 161st of the Senatorial fight, Hutchings, Oglesby five, would cast their votes for Streeter. It was not asserted that Evans would surely hold out and continue to vote his intention of falling into line for Streeter morning to have pledged themselves to Streeter. the information being Streeter, the information being given to the Post-Dispatch correspon ent by one of the 'Big Three,' who asserted that this result, at least, of the first ballot had been guaranteed to him by a Republican leader who communicated with the four mentioned. Considerable color was given to the story by the fact that Stoker and Bacon, the only two of the four in Springfield last night, refused point blank to state whether or not they were presented to yote whether or not they were prepared to vote for Streeter, and could not be led to commit

On top of this statement "long" Jones this morning asserted positively that a Senator would be elected on the second joint ballot to-day. He made this statement to two gentlemen with whom he was conversing, but when asked to confirm it further, declined to do so. He also refused to state whether or not the four Oglesby men were now in line for Streeter, or to discuss the probabilities of to-day's Ballot.

would be foolish in me to say any"he said. "The balloting will tell the business, and this is no time to talk."

THE BIG THREE'S THREATS. Following the reported pledges of four of the five Oglesby rebels to vote for Streeter on the first ballot, and the statement of "Long" Jones that an election would be reached on the second ballot, there came in suggestive sequence a flat-footed ultimatum from Moore and Cockrell of the "Big Three," that unless Streeter was elected by the third ballot today they would give up all hope of Republican unity of action on their candidate and cast their votes for Gen. Palmer. Taubeneck, who was in frequent conference with Streeter last night, was working hard all morning to keep Moore and Cockrell on the Streeter track. Some of the Palmer 101 took a little comfort in the report that Moore and Cockrell were in earnest in the threatened move to Palmer if the Republicans falled to come to time, but the majority of Gen.
Palmer's followers declared that such action was not likely until the Republicans themselves showed an inclination to abandon Streeter for some other candidate. In this connection a new rumor was afloat this morning. It was to the effect that if Evans held out to the bitter end against Streeter the Republicans would endeaver to persuade the "Big Three" to join them in electing a candidate who by some political magic or dissolving light funny business might be made to pose in a way that would be satisfactory to both farmers and Republicans.

The rumor was laughed at by "Long" Jones and others, including even the Democrats, who believed that Moore and Cockrell, if not Taubeneck, would be afraid to elect a Republican by their votes, knowing that Gen. Paimer was the choice of their constituency next to a Farmers' Alliance man.

Both steering committees held meetings this morning before the joint session opened. One of the significant features of the morning was the election of "Long" Jones.

was the election of "Long" Jones.

EVANS' DENIAL.

On his arrival this morning Senator Evans was seen by the Post-Dispatch correspondent. He denied emphatically the report that he was to furnish the Big Three with written proofs of Streeter's unconditional pledges to the Republicans and gave the following account of his Chicago conference with Cockrell on Saturday last:

"I saw Cockrell for one purpose only," said he, "and that was to ask him whether in the event of Streeter's receiving the 100 Republican votes he (Cockrell) would continue to vote when his vote and that of Dr. Moore would elect him. I told Cockrell that I wanted to know this because I did not wish to put myself on record as voting for Streeter unless it was plain that my one vote would elect him. The reason I put the question point blank to Cockrell was on account of newspaper stories that he and Dr. Moore had no intention of voting for Streeter when their votes would elect him. I said nothing to him about Streeter's pledges to the Republicans, as Cockrell knew as well as I did just what pledges Streeter had given. There is no question of my furnishing proofs of these pledges, but I am to meet Cockrell and Moore this morning and learn positively from them whether or not they will vote to elect Streeter. I insist upon them telling me before the joint convention assembles and that is the sole object of our meeting. Occkrell said nothing about abandoning Streeter, but would give me no direct answer at that time. He promised to do so to-day."

TAUBENECK TALKS.

TAUBENECK TALKS.

When seen this morning Taubeneck positively confirmed the story of Cockrell and Moore's abandonment of Streeter. He said it was not due to any statement made by Evans, but because his two associates had had no idea of electing Streeter at any time. They were to see Streeter this morning, but nothing would come of that meeting. When asked what the first joint ballot would show Taubeneck said, emphatically: "It will show woors and Cockrell voting for Palmer. I am now firmly convinced that Palmer will be elected on the first ballot."

now firmly convinced that Palmer will be elected on the first ballot."

COCKRELL AND MOORE DESERT STREETER. Messrs. Streeter, Taubeneck and Moore held a conference at the latter's boarding-house. Mr. Occkrell was seen at the Palace Hotel by Taubeneck and Streeter, but declined to confer with them further. To the Post-Disparted Correspondent Mr. Cockrell said:

"Both Dr. Moore and myself have decided not to vote again for Streeter, and no promises that he can make will take us back to him. Streeter has made such piedges to the Republicans that he is now practically a Republican and there is no reason for our supporting him any longer. Streeter has got into such a position that he has no control over himself. He is not the same man he was when we first put him forward. I have voted on a principle for eight weeks and do not want to elect a man at the end of that time who is pledged in every way to the Republican party. Dr. Moore and myself will vote to-day in a way to end this fight by the election of a Senator. Further than this I do not care to state."

REPUBLICANS DEMORALIZED.

Further than this I do not care to state."

REPUBLICANS DEMORALIZED.

The excitement caused by the new developments reached fever heat, and all sorts of rumors were soon flying about. The Republican camp was demoralized. Chairman Fuller of the Republican Steering Committee arrived at 10:30 and heard for the first time of Moore and Cockrell's rebellion against Streeter. He broke out into a volley of decided forcibles and swore the two Independents up and down in a highly picdents up and down in a highly pic turesque manner. All the Republica in fact, wrought up to a fighting point over this sudden overthrow of their plans and Senator Evans comes in for as much abuse as Cockrell and Moore. It is claimed that he precipitated the revolt of the independents, and will be solely responsible for Palmer's election. Chairman Fuller at once called a meeting of the Republican Steering committee at the State-house Rumors of a change from Streeter were then current. It was said that John P. Stelle would again be trotted in stelle would again be trotted in in a desperate hope of at least delaying the election of Palmer. "Long" Jones did not deny this, but stated that the decision of the Republicans would be made decision of the Republicans would be made known and the joint balloting begun. er and Dr. Moore was soon ended, but they refused to discuss it. Taubeneck claimed that nothing definite was done, but it was learned that Dr. Moore emphatically announced that he would not cast another. other vote for Streeter. The Democrats were, of course, jubilant and Gen. Palmer's star went way up in the heavens, shining brightly. Their steering committee also held a session. It was claimed that they received personal assurances from Dr. Moore and Mr. Cockrell that their yotes would be cast for Palmer on the teering Committee issued instructions to the depublican 100 not vote to-day, and that in consequence another delay would retard the progress of the Senatorial fight. This is the only means of preventing temporarily the election of Palmer, and gives the depublicans another chance to work up ome sort of a combine. Taube John P. Stelle to come to Springfield at once and from which it became evident that a new movement was on foot. At 11:30 o'clock the convention hall was crowded as it has never been crowded before and the most intense xcitement prevailed.

THE JOINT ASSEMBLY. The House was called to order at 11:80 o'clock by Speaker Crafts, and the time from that hour to noon was devoted to the ning of bills. At he Senate entered the House and a eep hush fell over the same the senate entered the House and a deep hush fell over the same as that body filed down the main aisle and took seats with the Representatives. Mr. Streeter was conspicuous at this time in the rear of the Republicans. "Charlie" Fuller was skirmishing around the front and "Long" Jones occupied his usual commanding position near the Speaker. There was one sick man or the lounge to the Speaker's right, Lyman of Cook (Democrat), who came assisted by his wife and a fellow member and staggered slowly down the aisle, sinking wearily upon the lounge, where he was care-fully covered with bedclothing and lay with closed eyes. The joint session opened amidst the deepest silence, the spec-lived and was settled by the result of the roll call. With the exception of Representative Callahan, not a Republican answered to his name, and the three Independents were equally silent. The flat of the Republican steering committee had gone forth and another day's delay in the Senatorial fight was passed. The roll call showed twenty-four Senators and seventy-eight representatives present, and the first joint ballot of the day was then taken. The fact that it was a mere formality, and that there was no chance of anything being accomplished, broke the formality, and that there was no chance of anything being accomplished, broke the spell of expectant silence. The cierk called the roll as though he was about to drop asleep, and the murmur of commotion arose on every side. The result of the 158d ballot of the senatorial right was 101 solid votes for John M. Palmer, the Republicans and F. M. B. A. not voting. A wild cheer burst from the Democratic side, which was full of derision in its tone and the joint convention then adjourned until to-morrow at 12 o'clock. The Senate left the House and the latter resumed its session. The House and the latter resumed its ession. The action of the Republicans is said to be the result of the new effort to effect another compromise with the Independents and Stelle's promise with the Independents and Stelle's arrival is anxiously awaited.

HUNTING A NEW CANDIDATE.

The Republicans state that the delay in getting down to actual work will only be for twenty-four hours, and that they were forced to adopt these tactics in order to get time to breathe and see if there was any possibility of Palmer's defeat by further treaty with Moore and Cockrell. They are evidently in the last stage of desperation, but insist that they will consent to a full vote to-morrow, no matter how the conference with the rebellious Independents results. The feeling against Moore, Cockrell and Senator Evans is most bitter in the Republican camp, but the expressions against the two Independents were moderating in view of the attempt to' be made to-night to come into line with them again. Streeter is virtually gone up the flue. Palmer is nearer victory than he has ever been, but there is a desperate combination still possible to the Republicans and Palmer was arrival is anxiously awaited. there is a desperate combination still pos-sible to the Republicans, and Palmer men crats held a caucus last night and agreed to give the complimentary nomination of the United States Senate to Goucher, Ostrom and

The Irish Party Troubles.

LONDON, March 10.—The Parnellites and anti-Parnellites are already in discord over St. Patrick's Day, and it is feared that the celebration will be attended by many outbreaks between the factions. The Parnellite breaks between the factions. The Parnellite minority of the National League of Great Britain have decided to issue a manifesto to the various branches explaining their position. The members in favor of Parnell's retention for the leadership will be recommended to take no action calculated to accentuate the split, and in the event of any attempt by the other side to utilize the St. Patrick Day celebration for making personal attacks upon the member for Cork, the Parnellites will be urged to maintain as patient a demeanor as possible. There is reason to apprehend, however, that this good advice will not be universally accepted, even in England, and in Ireland the feast of the patron sant is looked forward to with many misgivings. It is stated that Balfour has given orders that all constabulary be kept on duty that day, large bodies to be concentrated wherever there is most danger of rioting. ST. Lord Salisbury, however, succeeded in induc-ing her Majesty to carry out her original pro-gramme, leaving the Empress out of the question. The Empress, therefore, returns to Germany instead of accompanying her mother as had been arranged. The incident has aroused great bitterness in court circles, which is intensified by the knowledge that the Prince of Wales has had a serious quarrel with his mother on the subject while supporting, it is believed, the argument of Lord Salisbury.

So when, in that year, 14-year-old Esther Solymosis, the daughter of a poor Christian farmer, sud denly disappeared on the Saturday preceding Easter and rumor spread that she had been enticed in the Jewish temple of Tisza Eszlar and sacrificed, the feeling of hatred against the Jews was fanned into open persecution Ten weeks after Esther's disappearance th fully torn and mutilated and throat cut fro ear to ear, was dragged from the Theiss by the police. The remains were identified by Esther's mother as those of her child. Then the priests of the temple were thrown into prison; all the foremost Hebrew families were so persistently into prison; all the foremost Hebrew families were so persistently persecuted that they were virtually driven into exile. In some cases they were even tortured. Five persons were actually put on trial for the murder. It was in vain they protested that the whole case was a conspiracy and that the authorities themselves had kidnaped and then placed the child's body in the river from which it was subsequently recovered, to lend color to the alleged mystery of the sacrifice.

ROSA KOHLMEYEE.

The persecution did not end in Tisza when The persecution did not end in Tisza where it started. It spread throughout the Empire, and thousands upon thousands of unhappy children of Israel were forced to seek refuge in this country. The case excited the greatest interest on both sides of the Atlantic. During June, July and August the cable brought detailed descriptions of the trial scenes, the torturing of witnesses and the persecutions in general throughout the country. The trial ended in the acquittal of the accused. As time passed the case went into criminal history as one mystery more. It was soon forgotten by all except went into criminal history as one mystery more. It was soon forgotten by all except the unhappy victims.

Rosa Kohmeyer, a Hungarian girl about 21 years old, arrived in this port in 1888. She was accompanied by a friend, Juliska Ladisz. The girls had become acquainted aboard the steamer which brought them to this country. Rosa sought brought them to this country. Rosa sought board and lodging at the house of H. Brown, a tailor, at No. 201 East Fifty-eighth street. One day in August, 1899, she showed Mrs. Brown a very old-fashloned pair of stock.

"They belonged to my grandmother Solymosis," she said.

Mrs. Brown was one of the Jews who had been forced to leave Tisza on account of the olymosis case. The mention of the name "Was Solymosis your father's or your nother's mother?" she asked.

"My father's," was the reply.
Mrs. Brown related the conversation to her husband. He saw the Ladisz girl and asked her fearing that she might leave the city, he last night determined to reveal the whole matter to the public.

THE INVESTIGATION.

At No. 201 East Fifty-eighth street last night the Coroner met with his witnesses. They told their stories in a straight-forward manner. According to their evidence, strongly corroborated as it was, there seems no doubt that Rosa Kohlmeyer and Esther Solymosis are one and the same person. Rosa and Annie Wildman of No. 207 Seventh street, two very pretty girls, well educated and speaking English fluently, declared most positively that they knew Rosa and Esther are the same. They had both gone to school with her; they knew her mother and they had not the shadow of a doubt they were right.

"Only yesterday," Rosa said, "we both went to the house where she lived, and in accordance with Coroner Levy's instructions pretended we were looking for work. We saw Esther, 'or Rosa as she calls herself, and conversed with her for an hour. I think she recognized us but would not admit it."

Mr. Gaggenheim said he had known Esther for more than a year. He wanted her to see a play called "Tisza Eszlar," founded on the story of her supposed murder, which was being acted in the Thalia Theater. She refused to go, however. Esther, he says, is now working in Cohn's jersey factory, this city.

Joseph Frankel and his wite gave evidence now working in Cohn's jersey factory, this city.

Joseph Frankei and his wite gave evidence similar to that of the Wildman girls. Both swore they knew Esther in Tisza Esziar and recognized her at Gaggenheim's last Sunday.

"I shuddered when I saw her and thought of the wrongs she had brought upon our people," said Mr. Frankei. His wife had also been a schoolmate of Esther's. The statements of all the witnesses tailled exactly with one another. It was impossible to doubt their sincerity. Finally the Coroner decided to call upon Esther with the entire party of witnesses and newspaper men, and, if possible, induce her to confess her identity. Rosa was sitting in Mrs. Gaggenbelm's sitting-room when the party called. Coroner Levy began abruptly:

'Don't perjure yourself, girl," cried Mr.
Brown, flercely. "Don't you know there are half a dozen witnesses here who know you?"

"All these people, Rosa," said the Coroner.
"Knew you at your home. They knew your mother as well. They went to school with you. Won't you admit that you are Esther Solymosis?"

Solymosis?"
"My mother left me an orphan when I was 2 years old," was the only answer.
"Your mother is alive, but in poverty and starving," said Mr. Frankel. "I knew her as God I swear I did."

"You are both liars," excla imed the girl, now thoroughly aroused and angry. "Why do you torture me? Go, leave me!"

"Ah, Esther," then said Rosa Wildman. "Do you know me neither? Will you say I did not go to school with you?"

"You lied to me," was the answer. "Yesterday you told me you were never in Tissa.

erday you told me you were never in Tisza Eszlar.'' "I said that because I was told to," was losa's reply.
"Don't you see all these people know you?" again put in the Coroner, persuasively. "And do you think they would have an interest in making you miserable? Come, now,

The girl listened quietly and respectfully. Then she exclaimed: "They have an interest in me, for they lie about me."

"You and you and you and you," she houted at each witness in succession, "are all liars. God will avenge me on you; you are all liars."
"I was never in Tisza," she continued. "I was born in Miskolz twenty-four years ago. I'm a Christian, not a Jew. My right name is Rosa Szenby. I changed it to Kohlmeyer when I came to America. When I was 16 years old I went to Buda Pesth to live. I stayed there three years and then went to Szbadaka. There I lived until 1888, when I came to America. That is my whole life. I'm not Esther Solymosis. You people will suffer for this."

"Did you tell Juliska on the steamer you ad a great secret?" asked Mr. Brown.

"Did you tell Juliska on the steamer you had a great secret?" asked Mr. Brown.
"No; she lies."
"Did you not tell her in Central Park you had done such a wrong to some people that you wished you might live in a forest by ourself?"
''That's another lie."

"You told me," said Mrs. Brown, "that the stockings you showed me were your father's mother's, and her name, you said, was Solymosis."

"That's a lie, too. I said they belonged to my mother's mother."

In the same manner Rosa or Esther denied a half dozen statements, flatly contradicting each one. Before the scene was half over many of the women in the room were in a state of excitement, bordering on frenzy. Brown and Frankel became furious over the frequent application of the word "llar" to them and their wives, and the latter lost control of himself to such a degree that he had to be asked by the Coroner to leave the room. At midnight the girl was still persisting in her denials. Coroner Levy had not even then given up hope of causing her to break down ultimately and confess. The chances, however, appeared or causing her to break down attimately and confess. The chances, however, appeared very poor. The girl was cool and self-possessed and simply contented herself with denying everything that was said. When asked if she had no papers to prove her identity she produced a passport in which she was mentioned as Rosa Kohlmeyer.

Coroner Levy and other influential Hebrew will probably take measures at once to have the facts brought before the Austrian gov-

As to the agreement for a permanent separation Mrs. Meriwether asserts that she never signed it.

To-day Mr. Lee Meriwether said that he desired to correct the statement purporting to have come from him that he had charged the real cause of Gov. Francis' action in retiring him was to carry out a deal with the Hall family in order to get the Governor the assistance of the Farmers' Alliance. Mr. Meriwether says he did not make that statement, but what he said was that he believed the Governor's action was dictated by the pluck-me store corporations and capitalists whose enmity he had incurred.

THESE ARE THE MEN

From Whom the Grand-Jury Can Learn of the Motor Franchise Deal.

A COMPLETE EXPOSE OF THE ASSEMBLY'S $210,000 GRAB.

How the Seven Bills Were Passed Simuland Drank at the Expense of the Street-Car Lobbyists-Information for the Grand Inquisitors.

The ventilation of the street car deals by panies to change their motive power were paid, offers to the Grand-jury an opportunity ring some of the iniquitous public officials nto court to answer for their wrong doing. Various attempts have been made with more or less energy to discover evidence which would justify an indictment of some of these all but rare instances. But now the Grand-jury, simply for the asking, can obtain information which will enable them to find and indict the men who have sold heir votes for money. The seven ordinance cost the promoters $210,000, and those seven bills have a history which is shameful. They were introduced at about the same time and they traveled together through the Assem-bly. They went to the committee en masse, vere considered together, reported together and passed together. They went to the Mayor together, they went to the Mayor together, they were all approved on the same day, April 4, 1890, and as ordinances they numbered consecutively 15,600, 15,601, 15,602, 15,603, 15,604, 15,605 and 15,606. Their passage was as disgraceful as the methods by which it was secured, and when the legislators had delivered the goods they were feasted and dined by the lobbyists at a saloon just opposite the City Hall. But little attention had been attracted to the bills and when it was announced that just at the close when it was announced that just at the close of the session they had been rushed through with a hurrah and the feast had followed

The explanation of it was that the franchises had been bought outright and neither the Assembly nor the lobbysists wanted to call any attention to them.

The seven ordinances authorize the Benton-Bellefontaine: Forest Park, Laclede & Fourth Street, the Lindell, the Mound City, the Mis-

Bellefontaine: Forest Park, Laclede & Fourth Street, the Lindell, the Mound City, the Missouri, the Union Depot and the Vandeventer Avenue street railroad companies to erect and maintain overhead wires and to operate the roads by electricity; also to make any necessary changes in the tracks.

When they were introduced one director undertook to attend to all of them, and he turned lobbyist at once. He was frequently seen around the City Hall and the chambers of the House and Council. The members of the Assembly told him plainly that no progress could be made with those bills until the members and the promoters came to an un-members and the promoters came to an understanding, and after negotiating for some time they told him that the price would be $30,000 per road, or $210,000 for all seven.

The active director went to his own and the other boards and laid the proposition before them. It was not greatly accounted but it. them. It was not greedly accepted, but it has become such a notorious fact that no enterprise can secure legislation without paying for it that all of them but one consented. That one was the Benton-Bellefontaine and one of its directors opposed the proposition, and stated that he wanted to be put

CANDIDATES MEET.

Independent Nominees Decide Upon a Plan of Organization.

THE REPUBLICANS WILL PLACE TWO INDEPENDENTS ON THEIR TICKET.

A Fight in the Twenty-fifth Ward Between Six Candidates for the House of Dele gates—The Republicans Preparing for Their Convention Next Saturday-General Politics.

The Independent candidates held a meet ing at the headquarters in the Turner building yesterday afternoon to decide upon a plan to be adopted by which the city could be en-tirely canvassed and every portion of it made familiar with the Independent movement. Several plans were suggested and one was finally adopted by which a quick and thorough organization will be effected in every ward and precinct, where strong and continued work will be done until the day of election. The force of canvass-ers who are getting signatures to the petitions was increased and the new men started out this morning. The number of names already reported amounts to 2,000, though no report has been received for sev-eral days from the canvassers. Thursday night will be their time for making a report, and by that time the number will be imincreased. Men were started through all the factories large establishments of the city securing signatures and distributing petitions to be signed, and the work is being securing signatures and distributing petitions to be signed, and the work is being done in a thorough and systematic way. Every business establishment where any number of men are employed will be visited and canvassed, and the managers of the movement expect within a comparatively short time to have 15,000 or 20,000 names to the petition, and these the names of voters. The determination of the Republican committee to put some of the Independents on their ticket without any solicitation shows that the politicians have realized the strength of the movement. They have felt it in more ways than one. They have found that subscribers to campaign funds are fewer this year than ever before and men who have been accustomed to give announce that they will no longer assist a machine that grinds out such men as have been nominated. They are thoroughly determined that as the old parties will not select men who are given place as a reward for party service, the old parties will have to take a back seat and let the citizens elect to office men who will not demand money for legislation.

WILL NOMINATE INDEPENDENTS.

The Republican City Central Committee has decided to have the primary election next Friday, and the convention Saturday. The convention will meet at Central Turner Hall, and will be called to order at 10 o'clock by Chairman George Bain. Unless the leaders change their plans Messrs. Nagel and Gruner of the municipal ticket will certainly be nominated, and the indications point also to the indorsement of Mr. Dutro. A Republican Committeeman admitted to-day that it could be put down as a certainty that Gruner and Nagel would be put on the ticket and that there was a growing sentiment in favor of Dutro.

DEMOCRATS KICKING. "We do not intend to indorse them exact-ly," he said, "as we do not recognize the citizens' movement, but we will nominate them as Republicans."

The Democratic Convention will not be held until the 19th and the be held until the 19th and the leaders are watching the Republicans closely to see what they intend to do. The Demo-cratic committeemen who are disposed to talk on the subject say they will oppose any recognition of the citizens' ticket, no matter hat the Republicans do in their convention

Lively Times in the Twenty-Fifth Ward. There is a very perceptible lack of harmony in the Twenty-fifth Ward Democratic camp, which is due in a very large measure to the big field of candidates for the House of Deleong neid of candidates for the House of Delegates. No less than nine have already declared their candidacy, and more are expected before the primary is held. Among those already in the race are Louis Gray, Jerry Coakley, Wm. B. Dalton, Michael Lynch, Libra Ash and Louis Louis Cardy. these candidates are demanding represen-tation, and Committeeman Fox has promised each a judge and clerk at every polling-place. If every candidate takes this representation the committeemen will have to find large rooms to accommodate them all. to find large rooms to accommodate them all.

A meeting was held last evening at 3217
Park avenue to harmonize the warring factions and agree on some plan of holding: the primary. It was expected to be an harmonious meeting, but it turned out to be the very opposite. It was decidedly turbulent and resulted in the withdrawal of all present except the supporters of Gray.
The friends of Coakley charged that matters had been "fixed" for Gray, and howled long and loud to give expression to their disapprobation of the Gray workers. Coakley was present and getting the floor declared was present and getting the floor declare that he would not go into the primary elec-tion, but would take advantage of the Australian law and get his name on the ticket through the medium of a petition. He also announced that he would meet his friends Friday evening at Nagel's Hall, Comp-ton and Park avenues. Coakley will have his petitions ready and a notary public on hand to acknowledge the signatures of all who desire to sign.

The Democratic majority in the ward is about 200 and the other candidates declare that with an Independent Democrat on the ticket the chances will be against the regular nominee, inasmuch as the Republicans seem in a fair way to select a candidate without Registrations by Written Request. During the past few days there has been a report affoat that the Deputies in Recorder o Voters Carlisle's office were violating the registration laws in the matter of transfer ring voters at the simple request of Democratic politicians. Republicans charged that a politician would ask one of the clerks to transfer a voter from one precinct to an-other, and that such favors would be granted by the deputies regardless of the laws proibiting such doings.

Recorder Carlisle, when asked this mornng, said there had been no violations of the law. "We have corrected ome few clerical errors in the books," he which we, of course, have a right to to the week of course, have a right to to to to the wrong precinct in the Tweaty-seventh ward books and we corrected them when we found they existed. Concerning the transfer of voters, we have done nothing but what has been warranted by prenothing but what has been warranted by precedent. For instance a responsible person comes here and tells us that his father or brother or some friend wants to be transferred, but cannot find time to come to the office. We ask the residence of the person he desires transferred and then we look it up to see if it corresponds with the registration. Then we fill out a transfer card and mail it to the person who asks to have his registration changed. He is required to sign this and return it to this office. We then compare the signature on the card to the registration on our books and if they correspond we make the change. There is no room for fraud in this proces.. This has been done before as previous Recorders will admit."

Republican City Committee. To morrow evening there will be another setting of the Republican City Committee to complete the arrangements for the primary election and convention. It has been decided to keep the polls open next Friday afternoon between 4 and 7 o'clock. Delegates will then be elected to the convention, which meets Saturday. Among the names suggested at last night's meeting as available candidates were those of John C. Bloomfield, George Grassmuck, Charles Nagel, C. D. Comfort, Philip Gruner, E. S. Rowse, George W. Parker, Anthony, Ittner, August Gehner, David P. Murphy, Albert Bornmueller, James Martin, H. C. Grave, John O'Brien, L. B. Ripley and Wm. Hammerstein.

Political Notes.

Political Notes.

The Twentieth Ward Democrats are beginning to take a lively, interest in the contest for the nomination for the House of Delegates. The contestants are John E. Mohan, the present member, and James Townsend, a resident of the western part of the ward. Both are working hard, and a large vote is expected at the primary. Mohan has served two terms, and the Townsend workers say it is time to give somebody else a chance.

The Eighth Ward Democratic Club met at 1408 North Eighth street last night with Jerry Sheehan as President and E. C. McGrath Secretary. All the candidates for the House of Delegates were present and addressed the club. A committee was then appointed to select a delegation to the city convention.

THE JUNKETERS RETURN.

The Hyde Park Gas Works in Chicago In spected-B. P. I. Meeting.

The last of the House and Council junket party got back this morning from Chicago, richer in wines, honors, cigars and information. The party left last Saturday under the guidance of Messrs. Wright and Meysenberg, and Charles Sutter. They were put in a special car and stopped at the Leland Hotel while in the city. The main object of the trip was to inspect the Hyde Park Gas Works in Chicago, which works manufacture gas of the same kind and quality which is contemplated in the ordinance now before the Council. The Hyde Park gas works are a small affair with a large history. The buildings do not occupy much room, and the entire output of the plant is confined to the limits of what was Hyde Park village before it became a part of the city.

The works, it is asserted, belong to the Standard Oil Co. The way that corporation got possession is peculiar. They had built their pipe lines to South Chicago, but could not get a franchise to run mains into the city, so, knowing of the contemplated plan to include Hyde Park in the city, they bought the gas works to use its mains and get into Chicago when Hyde Park became part of it. In this, however, they were defeated in the Corporation Council by the Gas Trust and they are still limited to the old boundaries of Hyde Park. Benjamin Butterworth, one of the incorporators in the new bill, was in some way connected with the transactions at that time.

The process is a simple one and the gas bad unless burned with the special burner used for it. This burner is a carbon comb which works very much on the principle of an incandescent light, then it does, fairly well.

According to the statement of one interested in the new ordinance the intention is to operate the gas works along with the new conduits to be laid under the Sutter conduit The last of the House and Council junker party got back this morning from Chicago

If only somebody'd invent a lot of new adjectives to describe Barr's opening with! I could use several dozen on the first hat I saw in the millinery display. It was as flat as your hand and the only trimming was a bandeau of roses under the brim to rest on the head, and an immense Francois bow of ribbon on the top. The colorings were such as have never been seen before, a sort of purplish red with a name in three or four syllables shaded to lilac. It's almost too pretty to wear. A love of a French bonnet was made of jewelled lace and everybody was going into conniptions over it; price $35, "and that's cheap for it," said madamoiselle. Another beauty in pale gray chip with a brim of gray tulle and straw had a wreath of clematis and snowballs, and a white lace bow of immense size. A gray hat with great bunches of marigolds caught every eye. One imported bonnet was in black lace and burnt yellow velvet. The all-red hats, white and gold turbans, big flaring flats, close little chapeaux—oh, it is a superb display in millinery. Do go down and see it. Then I went to see the new coats and wraps in the cloak display, for of course every woman wants to know what's going to be worn in hats and jackets. I fell right in love with the new Henri II. short wraps from Pangat and the jaunty, stylish little coats in soft, rugged homespun cloth. The French Wraps are in vicuna cloth and both plain and richly embroidered, and the same shapes were also shown in less elaborate styles for people with every day pocket-books. Then the jackets -navy, ecru, cream and white, also black, with scalloped edges, collar and high cuffs; all edged in a beautiful gold or silver cord, extremely simple, but brim full of style and elegance and finished with gold or silver buttons. Won't our girls be bewitching in these coats? In long coats there are a great many entirely new ideas, and the big sleeves play an important part in each. I see the polka-dot craze has reached the cloaks, and becomes them, too. A beautiful traveling cloak shows shaggy dots in dulf tints, and is finished with yoke, deep empire belt and cuffs of silk. The capes are beautiful; many are finished with the stylish bertha, and the new Bernhardt Wrap is simply a fitted cape with a bertha draped on. The tailor coats are specially remarkable for elegance of shape and the lovely new shades to go with the new spring suitings; the English cloth coats with silk sleeves are bound to be favorites; they're so stylish. A dainty new black lace cape belts in at the back and has a very becoming flaring collar. The exhibit of tailor suits is very fine.

I expected to see something pretty and new in Barr's department for children's wear, and I found it. Red and navy blue trousers, with white, striped and solid red or blue sailor blouses, finished with white silk cords, and whistles. I don't know what the whistle is for, but it's awfully cute; and these little suits will be quite the acme of swelldom for young America this season. There were many beautiful cloaks for girls and a bewildering assortment of clothes for the little wee tots. I next started for Barr's great dress fabrics department, but my eye was caught by the unusually fine display made in the upholstery goods; the new designs in fret work for over mantels, doors, windows; the superb colorings in rich silk curtain and furniture stuffs, the beautiful lace curtains, draped in all the latest and most artistic effects. Rich velvet portieres, all forming an artistic contrast with the dull toned India rugs, art squares and the fur rugs on the floor of the rug department.

But, to get to the dress goods; I wish you'd do what I did, then you'll get an idea of the magnitude of Barr's dress goods stock. I stood at the head of the aisle devoted to wools, stood on Olive street in fact and looked down through one solid block to Locust street---but then I didn't see half. You turn up the next aisle for another two-thirds of a block to go through black wools and white goods; then turn down still another aisle for the great wash goods department covering half a block and still lace and net for dresses are to be heard from. It's enormous, mammoth, stupendous, unequalled. It's Barr's.

And what did I find new in dress materials? Everything! New plaids, actually novelties in plaids, and stripes running cris-cross, and every other way. Shaggy new wool in such delicate pale tans, grays, creams and other tints, perfectly plain, also with great polka dots sprinkled over the surface or with figures like tufts of sheep's wool. And the best part of it all is the prices fit all sorts of pocketbooks; everybody can find a dress at Barr's, from a lovely wool challie at twenty cents a yard to a superbly embroidered robe at fifty dollars.

A crowd was gathered about a great case containing a pair of superbly wrought silk curtains with a border of life tinted ribbon roses with arasene leaves. I could talk a week about the lovely new jets and nail heads to trim black lace and net dresses with, and another week about the lace and net dresses, but there isn't any more room and I haven't told you about the great show in linens nor the new parasols. In fact, I haven't told you anything, but you can see it all for yourself. You'll say with me that Barr's beat all the world! That Barr's is the biggest and that Barr's is the best.

A VIOLET WEDDING.

Marriage This Afternoon of Miss Lucille Nedderhut to Mr. Edward Busch.

The Church of the Messiah, corner of Garrison avenue and Locust streets, was this afternoon the scene of a beautiful church wedding, the marriage of Miss Lucille Ned it, daughter of Mr. A. Ne dernut, daughter of Mr. A. Neddernut, to Mr. Edward Busch, nephew of Mr. Adolphus Busch, the wealthy brewer. The church was filled to overflowing at the appointed hour, 3 o'clock, with friends of the young couple, chiefly representatives of high German society. About the chancel were grouped palms and foliage plants making an effective background for the bridgl party, which formed a picture soul. chancel were grouped paims and foliage plants making an effective background for the bridal party, which formed a picturesque group in front of the altar. It was a violet wedding, and the church was fragrant with the odor of these sweet flowers. The bridal cortege was led by the ushers, Mr. Marquard Forster, Mr. Gilbert, Mr. Oharles Meyer and Mr. Joseph Kahn. After them came the bridemaids, four pretty young demoiselles, Misses Clara Bush, Stella Nedderhut, Wilda Lemp and Fannie Orthwein, all of them gowned alike, in white China crepe, made decollete, and sleeveless, with long violet-tinted gloves, and slik hose and satin slippers, matching in color , the large bunches of Parma violets, tied with long satin ribbons, which they carried in their hands. The maid of honor, Miss Elenor Shiras of Kansas City, was attired in a gown similar to Kansas City, was attired in a gown similar to that worn by the young bridemaids and car-ried violets. The bride, a beautiful young girl of pure German type, wore a very ele-gant robe of heavy white satin duchess, made with a long square train over a petticoat of white satin, brocaded with silver, the bodice made high with long sleeves, devoid of all trimming.
The veil of tulie was confined to her fair hair by pearl pins, and her bridal bouquet was of double white violets. The groom's best man was Mr. Charles Arnold of Chicago. After the double white violets. The groom's best man was Mr. Charles Arnold of Chicago. After the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Dr. Snyder, the bridal party and invited guests repaired to the handsome family residence on Compton Hill. where an elegant reception was held from 4 to 6 o'clock, at which almost four hundred guests were in attendance. The whole lower floor of the spacious home was converted into a flower bower, the halls and stairway grouped with plants and garlanded with smilax, and in the parlors and salon spring flowers of every hue in beds of fern were banked upon the mantel pleces and tables. Mr. and Mrs. Eufus Delano assisted her father in the reception of the guests, the handsome young matron wearing her own wedding gown of white satin richly embroidered with seed pearls. The bridal pair were the recipients of an immense number of costly and beautiful wedding gifts, the happy groom receiving from his father, who resides in Europe, a check for $25,000. Mr. and Mrs. Busch will leave this evening to spend their honeymoon in the South, and when they return in April will be domiciled in a pretty new home, No. 1810 Nebraska avenue.

About three weeks ago as Miss Etta Warrance was walking along on her way to a neighboring drug store she was met by Erank Gutting, who, she claims, insulted her. She fied, and Gutting chased after. She was within a few steps of her home, 4000 Kossuth avenue, when she appealed to some men standing on the street with their stone wagons. Then, being so near home, she began to scream for her mother. Mrs. Warrance opened the window and asked what the trouble was. Upon learning what had happened she sent Etta into the house to get a brand-new buggy-whip District Police Court. Weather forecast for twenty-four hours, beginning at 8 a. m. to-day, for St. Louis:

THE election of the Independent Council ticket is a municipal necessity.

THE boodle "arbitrary" on franchises is another tax which St. Louis must get

THERE is one respect in which both Indiana and Kansas have the advantage of Missouri-their Legislatures have adfourned.

THE Council is the key to the municipal situation and the election of clean, honest honest government.

THE Democratic landslide has even reached Bangor, Me., where the Democratic candidate for Mayor has just been elected by a majority of 374.

THE outlook for the House of D is a powerful argument in favor of the Independent movement to save the Council from the politicians and corruptionists.

IT is for the citizens of St. Louis to de cide whether the city shall be ruled by rascals and unscrupulous politicians or by honest men. The decision will be recorded

THE fruit of the Governor's announce repentance with respect to that bargain for corporation influence should be the speedy adoption of the weekly wage payment bill by the Legislature.

THE exposure of the schemes of political bummers to get possession of the House of Delegates should bring to the Independent Council ticket the united support of the reputable citizens of St. Louis.

THE voters of St. Louis cannot, perhaps, prevent the boodlers from breaking into the House of Delegates, but they can render them harmless by electing the Independent municipal ticket and thus assuring the control of the Council by honest

IT seems to be a foregone conclusion that the House of Delegates will be packed with boodlers and political hacks and, therefore, the election of a clean Council ticket is necessary to preserving the City Hall from a reign of unbridled corruption.

THERE are indications that the coup d'etat by which the weekly payment bill and Labor Commissioner MERIWETHER were to be downed together is a brilliant failure. It was easy to down the man, but the measure has a tremendous pressure of public sentiment behind it. The conspirators see that it has come to stay. Its enemies are revenged on its chief promoter, but they have to take their medicine all the same and reform their methods.

THE Farmers, Alliance members of Congress are reported to have resolved to eschew swallowtails during their residence in Washington. This is undoubtedly a wise resolution. It is economical and is a guarantee of safety from the blunder of wearing a swallowtail when that picturesque garment of swelldom is out of order. It will also save the farmer representatives from the embarrassment of meeting constituents while arrayed in those "hi-falutin" things, and thus from being charged with getting 'mighty uppiah,' which is fatal to candidates from back dis tricts.

THE PEOPLE'S OPPORTUNITY.

When street railways pay $210,000 in bribes for the passage of ordinances, it is evident that the Municipal Assembly which pocketed the money could have obtained a larger sum for the city, if the members had been legislating for the city rather than betraying a public trust for private profit 300,000 at least to the companies, and doubtless they would rather have paid $300,000 openly to the city for them than 210,000 to legislative blackmailers.

But for this sort of work in our city Leglature in the past St. Louis would now be in receipt of a very large revenue from treet railways, and from lighting plants which she would have owned and which are now capitalized at more than $20,000, 000. Every $100,000 received in bribes for passing ordinances has cost the city more than $1,000,000, and will do so to the end. This is the price we pay for allowing national party machines to assume control of the purely business affair of municipal government. They make it a business affair for the party bosses and boodlers, who "divvy the swag" without caring a straw for the honest voters that support the party machine tickets thinking only

This rottenness will never be eradicated till the people learn to act upon the idea that all the politics there is in municipal government is a fraud and a false pretense. They can head off and partially reform both party machines by simply electing the Independent Council ticket this spring.

THE fact that the limit of the new millionaires' club in New York City has been fixed at 1,200 members may be taken as surprising evidence of the rapid increase of enormous individual fortunes in the United States. There is no reason to doubt that this number of millionaires may easily be collected in a club without going beyond the metropolis. But what monumental testimony as to the remarkable re sources of this country as well as to the rich opportunities, just and unjust, honest and dishonest, for the accumulation of wealth this club furnishes! From the standpoint of millionaires its establishment can hardly be regarded as wise.

THE position of the Tory party of Can ada is about as unpleasant as that of party which has gained an apparent victory at the polls can be. The majority of members from Ontario and Quebec in Parliament is against the government and these provinces are to Canada what England is to Great Britain. No government policy can last for any length of time without their support. The collapse of the Tory government, therefore, in the near future, may be anticipated.

THE revenue cutters Rush and Bear are being fitted up for the annual farce in men for that body will assure the city of Alaskan waters. In order that the show may not be without its red-fire accompaniment there are reports that unusual activity is visible in the British navy yards. The spectacle, therefore, of the two great nations playing the fool over a few sealskins will probably be repeated this sum-

THE MILLINGTON MURDER.

Attorneys in the Case Quarrel-The Evidence Adduced.

DENVER, Colo., March 10 .- There was a wrangle between the authorities in the Mill ington murder case when court opened in the morning and the legal gentlemen almost called each other liars. After their quarrel the examination was resumed. The first wi ness was Mrs. Fugh, who was in the church choir with Mrs. Avery. Through curlosity she had watched Mrs. Avery and had several times seen her go to Millington's room. Assistant District Attorney Bailey had see Assistant District Attorney Balley had seen thd same thing. J. A. Kissich, who sat up with Avery's body, heard laughter in the kitchen when they saw Dillie disappear. He saw no tears in Mrs. Avery's eyes when her husband died.

Mrs. Millington was the wife of W. H Avery when Millington appeared on the scene. He instantly fell in love with Mrs. Avery, and she received his advances favorably. They then planned Avery's removal. Mrs. Avery dosed Avery with arsenic, and when he died she married Millington.

Washington, D. C., March 10.—A supplement to the Congressional Directory showing the apportionment of representatives to the States and the boundaries of representative districts has just been published. It contains tables of population by counties, dis-tricts as now bounded and States, for the in-formation of legislatures. The following is the number of representatives apportion to each State under the acts of 1880 and 1890 and the average number of inhabitants to persons, and the Fourth Indiana but 129,339. All other districts are over 123,000 and there is barely a dozen under 140,000. The largest district in the country is the First Illinois (in Chicago), 316,280. The next largest is the Thirteenth New York (in New York City), 312,404. The Third Illinois (also a part of Chicago) has 307,972 persons, the Fourth Pennsylvania (part of Philadelphia has 309,986 and the Fifth Minnesota (it con-

THE NEW CIRCUIT JUDGES.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 10.—The President will probably not appoint circuit judges new law until the next session of Congress. There is little doubt as to his au thority to make the appointments at once, but he wishes more time in which to make the selections. It is not so easy to induce able lawyers to give up their private practice for such positions, and then a decision rendered by a judge appointed now might be ob-jectionable to some of the Senators and his appointment might in consequence not be

There is a sharp contrast between the wor appears at the Grand this week.

The former is keyed down to a quietly nat The former is keyed down to a quietly natural and artistic tone, while the inter is pitched up to the highest point of artificial claptrap. Miss Morton has taken the central incident of her play from a novel which the skill of the writer may make acceptable to those who admire stories of French intrigue twisted into complications which afford a sensational denouement designed to exploit intense mixed emotion, but transferred to the stage it would be difficult for the highest genius in dramatist and actor to give it the color of reality.

The purpose of the author was evidently to devise such tortures for the heroine as should afford opportunity for the expression of the strongest emotions and the deepest suffering, but the skill of the writer was not fully equal to the strongest emotions are the deepest suffering. to the task. The situation lack the convincing logic of skilfully handled circumstances and therefore even the best work of the actors cannot prevent an impression of absurdity to the more intelligent people in the suddence.

There are evidences of crudity throughou the play. The emotional scenes lack clearness and force of conviction, while the comedy scenes sometimes betray a want of skill and taste. The character and conduct of the persons on the stage lead one to wonder how it is possible that they move in the best society and whether the author really knows the difference between a sarred and a finnant society and whether the author really knows the difference between a sacred and a flippant emotion, or the distinction between the comedy of polite manners and the comedy of vulgarity. She is evidently not at home in the locale of her play.

Miss Tanner deserves praise for an intelligent, capable effort to give adequate and artistic representation to the part of Helene Buderaff. She holds her emotions well under control and reaches a result which is as effective as circumstances permit. Harold Russell gives an earnest and conscientious plece of work as Dr. Maurice Clement. Robplece of work as Dr. Maurice Clement. Rob ert Edeson succeds in giving a pleasing unconventionality to the part of Raymond d. Serene and is fairly effective. Owen Westford outlines the character of the Italian Conar broadly but clearly. The Teddy Smith of Theo M. Brown is neat and pleasing. Goldie Andrews gives rather too much flippancy to the ingenue part of Sylvaine; Ada Dwyer is weak as Lady Carylsferd. The Lord Carylsferd of George R. Edeson is clever of its kind and the Mme. Clemont of Virginia Buchanan is entirely satisfactory. The play is handsomely staged.

"OLYMPIC—COUNTY FAIR."
"The County Fair" is receiving warm welcome this week at the Olympic.
Few attractions are better suited to the popular taste than this picture of New England home and country life. With much quaint and pleasing humor there is a happy mingling of sentiment and a dash of stirring realism at the close. The types of character are taken from life, and while the drama itself is not of the highest order of merit, and is adjusted too nicely to the popular demand for enduring artistic value, it strikes a good medium of worth. It is clean and is fairly faithful to nature. It is full of entertaining incidents and pleasing ull of entertaining incidents and pleasing eatures, while the scenes on the farm of

The cast is the same as that presenting it here before, Fanny Denham Rouse leading it in her fine impersonation of Aunt Abby. The horse race scene instead of being the almost instantaneous picture that it was, is handled now so that the audience can get a fine view of it, and the prolongation of the race add to the excitement. The quartette does some to the excitement. The quarters enjoyable singing.

HAVLIN'S—"THE NABOBS."

MUSICAL CO.

"The Nabobs," a new musical comedy, is running at Havlin's this week, with John E. Henshaw and May Ten Broeck in the leading roles, supported by a good fun-producing company. There is no particular story in "The Nabobs," but it is full of laughable situations, and comprises a mixture of mythology and every-day song-and-dance, which gives a pleasing variety to the entertainment. The three acts are based on the weather, running from transparent to foggy, and ending in mist, and a thunder and lightning storm add impressions to the mythological storm add impressions to the mythological second act. John A. Henshaw as Wood B. Good does some eccentric comedy work and May Ten Broeck as Clara Jolly is musical and graceful. Barney McDonough as Philip Dropanickel makes a good second to Henbring down the house. The rest of the com-pany is quite capable and the performance is drawing large houses. Regular Thursday and Saturday matinees will be given.

POPE'S—''M'CARTEY'S MISHAPS.''

Lizzle Daly, as Jennie Primrose, and afterwards as Mrs. McCarthy, divides the honor with McCarthy himself, and her dancing is one of the features of the performance, as is also that of little Vinie Daly. Charles H. Gormanas Michael Mulligan does a laughable bit of work as the bosom friend of the leading character, and the other members of the company are equal to the demands of the story. The musical and dancing specialty features were all exand dancing specialty features were all excellent, and the play goes through with a rush of laughter in every act. STANDARD—SENSATIONAL BOOM CO.

The Sensational Boom Burlesque & Specialty Co. at the Standard this week opens its performance with a "mythological bulletin" called the "Coronation of the Violets," and then plunges into a specialty programme containing many good features. This lasts through the entire first part, and the second half of the entertainment consists of the burlesque of "Golden Locks; or the Beautiful Princess and the Bold Buccaneer," introducing the famous model scene in the "Clemenceau Case." The attraction is drawing well, and with such Specialty artists as Ruby Hart, Frank Goldine and Sallie St. Clair, the juvenile Worshauer brothers, Vanlew and Barton, and others, it is a first-class entertainment.

THE HOUSE.

The House spent the morning hour endeavoring to pass a resolution fixing the time for adjournment. The 17th, 19th and 20th inst. were the dates proposed. The argument took up the morning hour and went over until tomorrow. It is probable that the final adjournment will be upon the 19th.

The House this morning passed Church's bill, allowing the Jury Commissioner of St. Louis to appoint a deputy who shall have power to fulfill the duties of the Commissioner's office in the absence or illness of the Commissioner. The bill contained an emergency clause, Crouch's bill providing that in the option of the officers approving the bond, any

The House yesterday afternoon passed the famous House concurrent resolution No. 1, which is one of the most unusual resolutions ever passed by a Missouri Legislature. The title of the unique document reads like this:

The bill, which has been passed by the House and favorably reported in the Senate, declares express companies public carriers and places them under control of the Railroad Commissioners. The text book bill was finally passed by the House yesterday afternoon. The Alliance members all came pledged to pass such a bill, and some bill of the kind will have to be passed if the Legislature remains in session until the 4th of July. The bill passed by the House is the one prepared by the text book committee as a substitute for the dozen bills introduced upon the subject. It was amended out of all shape after it came from the committee, however. The bill is not what the farmers wanted. It provides for the letting of the contract for printing the text books to the lowest and best bidder, while the Alliance wish the State to print its own books.

ourt of Appeals Decisions Handed Down This Morning—A Discourse on Matri-monial Reciprocity—Dr. Wm. Porter's Bill Against the Shaw Estate—Courts.

The Court of Appeals this morning handed Court in the case of Martin Nelser against Emile Thomas. The parties were rival claimants to the office of Marshal of St. Louis. Nelser sought to retain the office upon the theory that Thomas, who had been elected, was not qualified. He began an injunction proceeding against Thomas and Recorder of Voters Williams to prevent the issuance of a certificate of election to Thomas. The Circuit Court discussed the temporary injunction on hearing and dismissed the proceeding. Jeiser appealed. The Supreme Court sustained the lower court. The defendants moved for the assessment of damages on Nelser's bond. The Circuit Court awarded 800 damages and both sides appealed. The Court of Appeals finds no error in the conduct of the defendant's case and refuses to review the finding as to the amount of the damages. The costs of the whole proceeding are adjudged against. The circuit judge dismissed both the petition of the wife and the cross bill of the husband. of the wife and the cross bill of the instant, and the most voluminous record ever filed in the Court of Appeals was brought up. Judge Biggs says that he has read it and has arrived at the conclusion that both parties failed to appreciate and observe the obligations imposed by their magriage contract.

"It is not our intention," he says, "to embody in this opinion a discussion of the evidence in order to justify our conclusion. To do so would only perpetuate in a public way the details of the domestic troubles and broils of two very respectable persons. However, we deem it but justice to the parties to say that, aside from their mutual wranglings and unseemly exhibitions of temper, their lives seem to have been quite exemplary. Uncontrolled tempers and the lack of a conciliatory spirit seem to have been at the foundation of their troubles. To these may be added the unwarranted interference of outsiders, which to some extent served to aggravate matters. Domestic unhappiness which is produced by such conduct will not justify any court in granting a divorce. The marriage contract requires the parties to make concessions the one to the other. Alleged Suppression of Evidence in the Hathaway Whelan Murder Case.

THE DEPENDANT'S ATTORNEY MAKES CHARGES AGAINST A POLICE OFFICIAL.

A Piece of Evidence Upon Which Hathaway's Freedom Depended-The Hennessy Trial-A Talk With Politez-Shot by a Planter-Killed in a Duel-The Criminal Calendar.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 10.—An important and sensational chapter was added to the history of the Hathaway-Whelan murder case yes terday morning in Lieut. Kipley's office. At torney W. A. Foster accused the Chief of De-tectives of attempting to hang the defendant in spite of the law and the facts. The trouble carried by Hathaway on the night of the shooting. The cane was the pivotal point in the trial. The defense set up that Hathaway was attacked by two strong men and forced into a corner. Whelan, it was claimed took from Hathaway his cane and used it in the assault. Finally, when Hathaway could retreat no further, he fired the fatal shot while his assailant was beating him with the cane. The defendant's attorney, Mr. Foster, tried to show that Hathaway had a cape when he antered the saloon. way had a cane when he entered the saloon but he was unable to produce but three nesses who would testify to that fact, and these were not as positive in their states as the witnesses for the prosecution were that no cane figured in the fight. The case went to the jury with a preponderance of evidence in favor of the prosecution's plea that Hathaway was not attacked with a heavy cane and was, therefore, not justified in using his revolver. Since the trial, how ever, it has been learned, so Mr. Foster says, that there was a cane in the affair. The attorney charges that the witnesses who swore to the contrary committed wilful perjury to the contrary committed wilful perjury by which a man's liberty for life was for-feited. Chariton and Foster, Hathaway's attorneys, say that they learned not only that there was a heavy cane in the hands of Whelan when he was shot, but that the cane had been in the possession of Lieut. Kipley ever since a day or two following the encounter. The fact that the influential police officer shuld surpress shuch vital evidence roused the fighting blood in Hathaway's attorneys and prompted them to attack Lieut. Kipley in his own stronghold. Mr. Chariton said there were other facts in the Hathaway case in the process of development, and he intimated very strongly they were of a character quite as sensational as the charges already made against Lieut. Kipley. At the ready made against Lieut. Kipley. At the State's Attorney's office they said they had never before had an intimation that there

"The man is, as I told the Judge, out of his mind. He told me that I had dined with his mind. He told me that I had dined with Hennessy. I never dined with Mr. Hennessy in my life. I spoke to him very kindly and finally succeeded in bringing him into court. He told me that he didn't want any lawyer here. He wanted his lawyer from Texas—somewhere in Texas. He seemed very much afraid, and I told him that the Court would protect him. I asked him where he was when the shooting took place, and he said, 'At home in bed. I was sleeping.' He is very much excited and continually mentioned the name of Ruguza, but heaven only knows who name of Ruguza, but heaven only knows who Ruguza is. He asked me the name of the Chief of Police who was killed, and I told him Mr. Hennessy. He then said that he was not with the party who killed the Chief of Police. That he had nothing to do with those who killed the Chief. At times he spoke Italian very imperfectly, and I could not make out what he said. He spoke about the Provenzano and Matranga affair, in which he seems to have been connected in some way."

Mr. Cefalu, who took part in the interview between Mr. Rocchi and Politez, said: "Politez wanted me to bring him into court, and said that if I would sit with him he would come out. He told me to ask the judge to take his place and let the lawyer defend him. He did not want any lawyer. 'If guilty,' Politez said, 'I am willing to hang myself.'

"Being asked who had killed the Onler, Politez said: 'How do I know? I was in bed sleeping at the time.' The next day, when he came home, his wife told him: 'They have killed the Chief of Police, and you had better leave the city.' He was getting ready to leave the city when he was arrested.

"I asked him again who had killed the Chief and his answer was 'I don't know.' Chief, and his answer was, 'I don't know.

In his imperfect dialect Polites later went on to state that the Matrangas and Machecas are the grand moguls of the Mafia society. It is a sort of religious organization under the patronage of St. Joseph. Sunzeri, Geraci, Pletro Monasterio and others are mere tools in the hands of stars of greater magnitude.
"The boy Marchesi was stationed at a point near the shed to whistle when the Chief would approach. Politez here gave an imitation of the way the boy whistled. (It was the regulation Dago whistle, with which street gamins are wont to greet Italian parades.) Politez advised the bystanders to warn the Judge and court officials that their case will be attended to at no late day by the Mafia organization.

getta so. '(Here Politez drew the foreinger of his right hand across his throat to indicate the way that Provensano would be dis-posed of.)

'Politez reiterated this statement about himself and others being mere tools in the hands of the leading lights of the Mafia So-clety. He turned to Sheriff Dwyer and begged him to see that his family would be taken care of."

POLITEZ' CAREER. Politez' wife, who is in daily attendance at the trial, was asked what she thought of her husband's case, and said that he had her husband's case, and said that he had been insane about a year ago, but had recovered his faculties again. His long separation from her, she said, was probably one of the reasons for his present condition, and she thought that if he were permitted to see her again he would be all right. She said that he was born in Palermo and had formerly resided in Bryan, Tex., where he had gotten into some trouble, the nature of which she could not give. Her husband was cleared of the charge against him, and had then become involved in a love scrape. He was then a young man, and fell in love with a girl to whom his parents objected. He was prevented from seeing his sweetheart, and was put in a closed room. He raved around for three days, and refused to be comforted and tore his hair, and scratched up his face in a terrible manner at having been compelled to give up his sweetheart.

A cough or cold is a spy which has stealthily come inside the lines of health and is there to discover some vulnerable point in the fortification of the constitution which is guarding your well-being. That point discovered the spy reports it to the enemy on the outside. The enemy is the changeable winter climate. If the cold gets in, look out for an attack at the weak point. To avoid this, shoot the spy, kill the cold, using SCOTT'S EMULSION of pure Norwegian Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda as the weapon. It is an expert cold slayer, and fortifies the system against Consumption, Scrofula, General Debility, and all Anæmic and Wasting Diseases (specially in Children). Especially helpful for children to prevent their taking cold. Palatable as Milk.

SPECIAL.—Scott's Emulsion is non-secret, and is prescribed by the Medical Profession all over the world, because its ingredients are scientifically combined in such a manner as to greatly increase their remedial value.

The Hennessy Trial.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 10.—The attorney for Politz, one of the alleged Hennessy murderers, who made a confession to the court the other day, insists that the man is insane and will make that his plea in the defense of the accused. He will also endeavor to prove that the man is insane.

POLITEZ'S STATEMENT.

Mr. John Rocchi, who succeeded in having a long talk with Politze, the insane witness, reporting it said:

"The man is, as I told the Judge, out of his mind. He told me that I had dined with Hennessy. I never dined with Mr. Hennessy in my life. I spoke to him very kindly and finally succeeded in bringing him into court.

A Record of Tragedies.

A Record of Tragedies. LOGANPORT, Ind., March 10.-A sensation occurrence in connection with the trial and conviction of Martin Shafer for the murder of Edward Lowrey has just been made public. Last Thursday Shafer handed to Sheriff Donaldson, for mailing, a letter addressed to his wife. In pursuance of his duty Donaldson opened the letter, which informed Mrs. Shafer that the writer had decided to feign insanity and in this way be sent to the asy-lum here, instead of the pentitentiary. He hoped to make his escape from the asylum through the co-operation of a relative employed as guard at that place. Beside outlining his plans of escape, the communication contained directions for the disposition of his property. While a motion for a new trial was being arread before Indee McConsell was being argued before Judge McConnell on Friday the letter was handed to the Judge who immediately sentenced Shafer to f years' imprisonment at Michigan City. SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 9.—The particulars of the killing of Wm. CATTLE INSPECTION.

Southwestern Traders Wish St. Louis Made an Inspection Point.

Walter L. Bartley of Abliene, Kan., re-turned from Washington this morning on his way to his home. "The cattlemen were unsuccessful in having the number of inspector points increased," said,Mr. Hartley, "but we have not given up the fight yet, as the result can be accomplished as well by Cabinet action as by legislation. The reason that a bill establishing more numerous points at action as by legislation. The reason that a bill establishing more numerous points at which cattle could be inspected by Government officials was not passed was simply because there was not time to reach it. In the next Congress it will certainly be passed if action is not taken before that time by the Bureau of Animai Industry. What we Southwestern cattlemen are particularly desirous of obtaining is the establishment of St. Louis as an inspection point. As matters stand now those interested in the dressed beef combine have sucpoint. As matters stand now those interested in the dressed beef combine have succeeded in having inspectors stationed at points where they would do them most good, that is at piaces where the market and yardage is controlled by the dressed beef men. Kansas City and Chicago have inspectors, and so has Indianapolis, as well other points that I could name, but there is none at $\frac{1}{2}$ Louis. and Unicago have inspectors, and so has Indianapolis, as well other points that I could name, but there is none at St. Louis. The reason is that the dressed beef men know that their monopoly can be more successfully attacked from St. Louis than from any other city in the country, and they have therefore done everything in their power to/prevent this market from becoming an important one. If we can have inspectors at this point the Southwestern cattlemen stand ready to subscribe largely to the stock of a large cattle yard west of the city, and local capitalists have agreed to put up a dressed beef factory. Who they are I am not yet at liberty to reveal, but negotiations which have long been pending were recently brought to a successful conclusion, and it may be regarded as certain that as soon as this city is made an inspection point an immense number of cattle will be sent here.

THE BANKRUPTCY BILL.

Manufacturer's Views in Regard to the Opposition to It.

In reference to the bankruptcy bill that In reference to the bankruptcy bill that passed the House of Representatives, and which was not taken up in the Senate because of lost time, S. C. Halsey, a large wholesale dealer of New York, who is at the Southern, said: "The opposition to the bill comes from two sources, the country lawyers and the men who consider insolvency to be not a remote possibility. Of course, there was opposition from other quarters, but the two classes mentioned did the most effective work in delaying the passage of the bill. The great wholesale houses, almost without exception, are as much in favor of a bankruptcy law as the bankers and the different boards of trade of the country. But all the lawyers in the small country towns are opposed to it, as they think, erroneously in my opinion, that its enactment would deprive them of a great deal of business. The way that affairs are managed now, gives the country lawyers a very considerable amount of practice. As soon as it is known that a merchant in a small town is involved, his local creditors at once set to work to grab everything in sight, and before the wholesale dealer who sells the merchant the goods knows what is going on, every piece of property is decorated with an attachment. Lawyers are naturally on the lookout for cases of this kind, and instances are numerous in which a man's credit has been attacked solely for the purpose of making cases. Wholesale dealers under the present system cannot afford to take the risk of carrying merchants over a season of trouble that they otherwise would, and the man who honestly wishes to pay his debts suffers. The fraudulent insolvent is given great opportunities of cheating, for nothing is easier than to admit the existence of a bogus debt to a neighbor, and make an arrangement with him to have everything seized before the foreign creditors can take action. The small country towns suffer more than the cities from the lack of a bankruptcy law, as it is not easy for their merchants to obtain credits, and from the tone of their representativ passed the House of Representatives, and which was not taken up in the Senate because

THE PRELIMINARY POSTPONED.

The preliminary examinations of George Dashman and Midwife Lou Hotson, charged with manslaughter, were to have been had this morning in the Court of Criminal Correction. The pair are jointly charged with having caused the death of Laura Fitts. The girl died at the home of her parents, 2808 Morga street, from the result of an operation which it is alleged was performed at the house of Mrs. Hotson the night before. Her mother thought she had spent the night with friends and that she had been taken ill at a party she was supposed to have attended. It was developed, however, that she had been taken to Midwife Hotson's house. Dashman is supposed to have brought her there. There was quite a gathering of spectators in the court-room and the witness-room was filled with female witnesses for the prosecution. Charles P. Johnson and Mr. Riddle, who are to assist in the prosecution, were in court, as were also M. McDonald, John I. Martin and S. S. Bass, attorneys for the defense. Dashman was present, as was also Miss Annie Newland, Mrs. Hotson's friend, but Mrs. Hotson was not in court. The defense would probably have asked for a continuance, as they were not ready, but Prosecuting Attorney Dierkes read the following certificate to the court:

"Thereby certify that Mrs. Fitts is confined to her bed with nervous exhaustion and too sick to attend court. Respectfully,
"AMAND N. RAVOLD."

THE SOUTHERN FLOODS

MASHVILLE, Tenn., March 10.—A large part of Nashville is under water, and to-day hundreds of people are homeless. The Cumberland River is gorged, and all the low-lying parts of the city are now submerged by back-water. The gauge shows the present stage of water to be within six feet of the mark of 182. From the dome of the Capitol building the scene is a rare one. Mile after mile of watery waste can be seen dotted all over by houses and factories, some of them whole and intact and some wrecked by the undermining of the flood. Burnside, Ky., is the worst sufferer, and in addition to the rapid rise of the river a heavy rain has been falling incessantly for twenty-four hours. Many people were driven from their homes out into the rain, where they had to do as best they could. All up and down the Cumberland Valley it is the same.

PICKENS, MISS.

PICKENS, MISS.

PICKENS, MISS., March 10.—This city has been cut off from all sides since the last train left on Saturday. To day the tracks of the Illinois Central are lying along in ditches. The embankments are gone and all but one bridge completely wiped out. The Big Black River is higher than it ever has been since records were kept and it is still rising.

DEVASTATION.

DEVASTATION.

QUITMAN, Miss., March 10.—In 1871 the flood was as high as it is to-day, but never since that day until this has the country hereabout been so dayastated. At Enterprise the streets are rapidly flowing rivers. The town is isolated, and will remain so for several days to some.

YAZOO CITY.

YAZOO CITY, Miss., March 10.—Reports from all around the country are of a most discouraging nature. The steamers are all over their banks and fully $10,000 worth of bridges have been swept away. North of Yazoo City no trains have been run, and it is impossible to tell when the tracks will again be in condition. The water is receding.

DAMAGE ON FLANTATIONS.

VICKSBURG, Miss., March 10.—During the recent storms the coast line of this county was swept by a veritable cyclone. Three plantations were swept, and every house upon them laid flat. On Col. Flowers' place one negro was killed by flying wreckage.

MONTGOMENY, Ala., March 10.—Stock is being drowned about here at an alarming rate.

ng drowned about here at an alarming rate.
The Alabama is over its banks and the Coosa and Tallapoosa are booming. People are moving out rapidly to avoid what is sure to NO DANGER JUST NOW.

NATCHEZ, Miss., March 10.—The engineer in charge of the levees in this district reports everything comfortable and safe. The danger line is still there feet above the present stage of water.

THE RAILEOADS SUPPERING.

MEMPHIS, Tenn.. March 10.—All the roads here have been more or less troubled by floods. The Memphis & Charleston at Corinth, Miss., has had an immense amount of trouble. The Kansas City, Memphis & Birmingham and the Illinois Central all report trouble at several points.

THE LEVEES SAFE.

ARKANSAS CITT, Ark., March 10.—The river here is already 45.7 on the guage, and rising. The levees so far are sound and work is being lone on them all the time. Last year the lirst break occurred when the guage was 47, or two feet higher than it is now.

ARRADELPHIA, Ark., March 10.—The Ouchita River here is very high and rising. Young Wilson Turner, aged 17, were drowned trying to dislodge a log tangled in the ferry rope.

THE MILWAUKEE PLASTERERS.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 10.—There is a strong probability of a general strike and lockout of plasterers. The union some time ago took action to demand an increase of wages of from 35 to 40 cents, the new scale to go into effect on March 1. The demand was laid before the bosses and they declined to grant it, and at the same time passed a resolution by which each firm furnished a bond of $500 to be forfeited in the event the firm gave in to the men. Eight firms and bosses have signed the agreement, and it is probable that before the end of the week all plasterers will be locked out. There are nearly two hundred plasterers in the city, nearly all of whom belong to the union. A small number of men are already locked out.

There was a little group sembled in the corridors of the Burne House shortly before the hour of midnight. They were all in a happy frame of mind, as they had received news early in the evening that the League agent had failed to negotiate with Johnson, and they naturally felt secure in their position and confident of success in the fight with the old organizathe report. If the deal had been consummated early in the day it would not have occasione so much surprise, but they all felt secure in the belief that the League had refused to treat with the big Brotherhood chief.

"Nothing ought to surprise me," replied Julian B. Hart, "but still I believed that Johnson would remain firm in his resolve and fight out the issue with the League in this city."

A group of jolly-looking men stood in the obby of the Burnet House this morning thatting and laughing in an unconcerned way. They were delegates from the various clubs in the American Association who came here to attend the spring meeting. "You fellows just wait two or three days," said Zach Phelps, "and you will see a change in the situation."

Chris Von der Ahe and George Munson arrived this morning from St. Louis and joined Won der Ahe remarked: "We, the Associa-tion, is not yet whipped and we will make a big fight before giving up."
"That's about the size of it," chimed Mun-

on. "Cincinnati favors an Association club day."

"We are not beaten," said Julian Hart,
"We will meet as "though taken by surprise. We will meet as we had arranged to do, but other business will come up before the schedule is dis-cussed."

The feeling expressed by other delegates was that Johnson had made a good thing of the sale, but that he had made a catspaw of the Association. Twenty-four hours ago the League was whipped to a standstill. They were desperate, and as Kelly expressed it, "Would have paid $80,000 to get the club."

They also say that Johnson should, as a matter of principle, have given the Associa tion a chance to purchase at the same figures before selling out. The deal places President Kramer in the very peculiar position of liv-ing in a city which has no Association club. The League has the best of the situation this morning, but everything may change by night. Prince and Wagner can now turn on the League and close the gates of the Western avenue grounds by injunction. Altogether affairs are decidedly mixed. This last deal makes six organizations the Cincinnati club has held membership in within the past eighteen months. Within four months she has been in the League three times. AL JOHNSON'S PERFIDY. Telegraphic advices to-day confirm the story that Al Johnson of Cleveland, who controlled the Association franchise at Cincinnati, has proved a traitor to his associates and sold to the National League his club and honor, or, rather, his reputation, for if he has acted as claimed he had no honor to dispose of. The story told in the telegrams is that J. Palmer O'Neil and Ed Hanlon, President and Manager respectively of the Pittsburg National League team, visited Cleveland and National League team, visited Cieveland and held several conferences with Johnson.

A. G. Spalding of Chicago is also re-ported to have been in Cleveland advising with his associates, but returned home be-fore any deal was made. Johnson, while in New York on Feb. 22, had a talk with Abell of the Brooklyn National League Club, in which they are said to have agreed upon $85,000 as a fair price to be paid by the National League for Johnson's Cincinnati plant, and Abell said he thought he could get the ex-Players' League magnate that price. O'Neil offered Johnson $35,000 yesterday morning and $2,500 money advanced by Johnson to the Cin-cinnati players, but wanted a bond of $20,000, protecting him against the Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston interest holders in the give notes that were satisfactory the men separated in not the most pleasant state of mind. Hanlon brought the men together again and Johnson wanted $30,000 cash for his assured. The club bidding the most mo interests just as they stood, regardless of will secure the mill. Myer has already all claims. O'Nell was only willing to pay $20,000, but after considerable parleying it was agreed that Johnson should be paid $26,000 cash and given a note for $4,000 payble July 1, this note to be indorsed by all the League clubs. O'Neil is to take immediate League clubs. O'Neil is to take immediate possession of the club. Johnson also agrees not to go into the base ball business for ten years. Johnson himself in an interview is alleged to have admitted that he sold out. The transfer was made to Frank Chamberlain of leveland as a blind, but this was afterward hanged. Johnson says he is glad o be out of the base ball to be out of the base pail business. He will go to Hot Springs and from there to Louisville, where he is to be married, and thence to Eu rope on his wedding tour. Johnson, in return for his perfidy to the Association, declares that he hopes they will win their fight with only yesterday Mr. J. Earle Wagner of the Only yesterday Mr. J. THE CHILDS CASE. BALTIMORE, Mo., March 10.—Charles Lead-ley of the Cleveland National League Club, Geo. K. Frazer of the Syracuse International League Club and W. S. Walker of Detroit, Second Baseman Childs. Mr. Elliott and had been retained to look after the interests of the Cleveland Club, will file an answer to Manager Barnie's petition in the Circuit Court, No. 2, in which the Baltimore Club prays for an injunction against Childs to restrain him from playing with any other club than Baltimore.

Leadley says: "I be a support of the court of the club than Baltimore. during the greater part of yesterday were closeted with Thomas Ireland Elliott and than Baltimore.

Leadley says: "I had not the faintest idea that Childs had signed an agreement with Mr. Barnie when I obtained the signature. I was on my way from Cleveland to Baltimore to sign Beatin when I heard that Syracuse was going to sell Childs to Boston and that he said he would not play in that city. I saw Childs and told him I would try to make a deal with Mr. Prince to secure him. I was to give Boston Stricker and Radford for Childs and I intend to deliver these men to Mr. Prince as soon as I secure Childs. Mr.

Prince is then to pay Mr. Frazer $2,000 for the release of Childs. Of course, if the court grants the injunction, Cleveland will have nothing further to do than to bear it."

Frazer said he would sue for damages if he did not receive his $2,000 either from Boston or Baltimore. Mr. Frazer left Baltimore last night for New York.

THE RING.
Tommy Danforth, the feather-weight puglist, has added another to his long string of ist, has added another to his long string of defeats. Jimmy Hagen of Philadelphia knocked him out at Hoboken last night in a round and a half. The men fought at 122 pounds, and the battle was fast and furious while it lasted. Danforth did considerable work in the opening round, but was no match for Hagen, who showed himself to be a wonder was no match for Hagen, who showed himself to be a wonder at upper-cutting, and who landed his left on the New Yorker whenever he pleased, and always landed it hard, too. Danforth was somewhat dazed by the punishment he received in the first round, but he came up strong in the second round. Hagen upper-cut him in the face several times and knocked him off his feet three times in this round in one minute and forty-five seconds, Danforth remaining down the third time. Kerrigan and Needham fought a draw of 106 rounds at San Francisco. The Bostonian no longer cares to get down to the light-weight limit, but prefers to fight as a weiter-weight. He once gave Jack McAuliffe a hard battle and is anxious for another go at the light-weight champion. Kerrigan says that if McAuliffe will fight at his weight-140 pounds—he will give the New Yorker $2,000 out of a $5,000 purse to meet him. McAuliffe never wants to fight at less than 137 pounds himself, and has repeatedly refused to get down to the light-weight limit London. to get down to the light-weight limit London prize ring rules.
